Web Browser

- How does a web browser show you a web page?

- It takes HTML markup document then it apply CSS styling rules to the elements in the HTML document.

But …

- Different web browsers don't always interpret they style the same as each other!

- And as browsers develop, so they changes what new rules they support.

- Browser manufacturers likes to experiment with CSS properties in hope that their interpretations are adapter